Across Basingstoke and Hampshire Home-Start volunteers visit families at home each week, supporting parents in situations as diverse as isolation, bereavement, multiple births, illness, disability or who are just finding parenting their children a struggle.

They provide non-judgemental practical and emotional support and help build the parents confidence and ability to cope. Home-Start runs more services and has more volunteers supporting more families than any other family support charity in the UK.

All schemes are supported by Home-Start UK, which provides training for staff, volunteers and trustees, information, guidance on governance, legal and human resources and help with fundraising and communications.

Volunteer for Home-Start and make a difference to a family in your community

...your questions answered

What is Home-Start?

Home-Start is a national charity with schemes in hundreds of local communities. We recruit and train volunteers to help families with young children. Our volunteers, who know about being a parent, support others by visiting them in their own homes for two to three hours each week. We also run special family groups and hold social events for families.

What kind of families would I be helping?

All kinds of families can find it hard to cope for all sorts of reasons, maybe because of the illness or disability of a child or because of post-natal illness, bereavement or loneliness. At Home-Start we support any parent with at least one child under five who asks for our help. Our supported families, like our volunteers, come from all walks of life.

Can my support and friendship really make a difference?

All parents know that those early years, before children go off to school, are of vital importance for a child's development and at Home-Start we believe parents have the key role in creating a secure childhood for their children. It's just that sometimes they need a bit of help... your help.

As a volunteer what would I actually do?

Usually you would visit a family in their own home once a week for two to three hours. How you help is really down to the family itself. Some might need someone to talk to... others may need more practical support with meal planning and cooking, reading to the children, going to the local park, or finding out about local services.

Do I need any qualifications to be a volunteer?

The only real 'qualification' is experience of bringing up children. Friendliness and a caring attitude are essential as well as an understanding of the pressures of parenting. We value people who don't judge others; people who will respect the fact that they have been invited into a family's home; people who will treat a mother or father as an equal.

Do volunteers get any training?

Yes, we give high priority to the recruitment, induction, training and support of all our volunteers. You will be supported during your training and throughout your contact with families. Home-Start's highly rated Preparation Course is also accredited by the Open Collage Network. If your scheme offers this accreditation you will be able to gain credits through formal recognition of your Home-Start training.

What would I get out of volunteering for Home-Start?

Knowing you have helped; a boost to your self-esteem and confidence; even a foot on the ladder towards a job. See what Philippa says in her story...

Can I help without visiting families?

Yes. Schemes also need volunteers to help run family groups and social activities and to help raise funds. They also need Volunteer Trustees to help manage their work and may need occasional admin support.

Philippa, a mother of three and a Home-Start Volunteer

"Home-Start appealed to me because it was a charity devoted to the family. I felt I had a great deal of experience in this and therefore something to offer.

When I met my first family I immediately warmed to them. Although I was asked to give practical help, it soon became apparent that the mother needed emotional support as well. It took some months for her to talk about this, and it really felt like a breakthrough.

The most obvious reward is the sense of helping people. Being a volunteer can occasionally be emotionally draining, but there are also poignant moments; for example when a child in your Home-Start family tells you he loves you, or the mother says she doesn't know how she would manage without you, it feels wonderful.

As a Home-Start volunteer I never feel isolated. I am part of a team and know that if I encounter any difficulties I can contact my Home-Start Co-ordinator at any time for support. I have found being a volunteer for Home-Start an extremely positive experience.
